emerald: volume iii new jersey tercentenary

Through these doors come young people with various abilities, interests, and objectives. It is, therefore, imperative that a wide variety of subjects be available. New Milford High School is committed to a curriculum which offers each student the opportunity to obtain a broad, enriched education and thus provides the key to other doors leading to responsible citizenship, attainment of goals, and happiness.

dedication

To Mr. William R. Snyder, an administrator devoted to a body of youth and its intellectual development, an individual whose influence may shape the future, a gentleman with sympathy and authority, we, the Class of '64, dedicate this yearbook, a history book of a fine school, your school—and a school greatly indebted to you.
